Now that you have looked closely at some example writings, what questions do you have? Think about your own writing. In what areas do you think you already do well? What areas could use some improvement? Answer the following questions carefully, thoughtfully, and neatly.

1. Which of the traits do you believe to be your strengths? Use complete sentences in your answer.
For example: Organization is one of my strengths because I try to remember my reader may not understand my subject as well as I do. I don't want to confuse them, so I make sure to organize my writings.

2. Which traits do you believe need the most work in your writing? Use complete sentences in your answer.

3. Think carefully about what questions you have now. Consider each trait. What do you need to know in order to improve your writing? For example: Writing introductions? Conclusions? Working on Organization? How to have stronger voice? You do not need complete sentences. A bulleted list is fine.
